‘Snatching history from the hands of time’

The Church of St Peter and St Paul is situated in the centre of the village of Lynsted (National Grid Reference TQ 9427 6087). Lynsted lies about 1 mile (1.6km) south of Greenstreet (Teynham) on Lynsted Lane, in the Borough of Swale in Kent. The Post Code Area is ME9 ORQ.

The ‘Chapel of Teynham’ at Lynsted was given to Archdeacon Simon Langton by his brother, Archbishop Stephen Langton in 1229. There is no record of a church in Lynsted in the Domesday Book. The existing, mainly flint, structure dates from the 14th and 15th centuries, with the chancel rebuilt in the 16th century, with further 19th century restoration. The church is notable for its monuments by Epiphanius Evesham.

The monumental inscriptions recorded here relate to the graveyard surrounding the church. This is a particularly attractive area, with a charming scatter of old gravestones beneath magnificent lime and yew trees. The graves date from 1671 to 1944, with some recent cremation memorials. Relatively few of the existing primary grave markers have been moved to the periphery of the churchyard, as has happened in other cases in Kent. This has meant that the graves remain in family groups, which eases research. Many of the stones are weathering badly, however, especially under the overhang of tree canopies. The Society, therefore, considered the making of a permanent record of the inscriptions an urgent priority.

Inscriptions on the ledger stones and other monuments within the church can be viewed on a computer record in the church. A separate graveyard extension, 150 metres to the north, contains graves from the early 20th century onward. Many of the inscriptions of these are also recorded in a book held in the church. Further information can be obtained from the churchwardens.

Notes on procedure and interpretation

A survey of the gravestones and their inscriptions was carried out between May 2007 and August 2009 by members of the Lynsted with Kingsdown Society. Care was taken to avoid damage to the lettering and to minimise disturbance to the lichens growing on the stone surfaces.

The grave positions on the plan are indicative only. The position of a given stone is not intended to be precise, but its relative location with respect to neighbouring graves, trees and structures should be reasonably accurate. The graves, grouped in sectors, have been numbered in a sequence beginning in the sector west of the main gate in Ludgate Lane and moving in a clockwise direction around the church building. Within the sectors, numbering is, as far as feasible, in rows running east to west alternating with west to east, i.e. 'shuttle-wise'.

Some footstones, being relatively light, have been moved, at some time in the past, to the boundary of the churchyard. No attempt has been made to 'match' these to their original graves. Two batches of footstones, 13 to 25, and 59 to 69, together with other smaller stones or fragments, are in stacks against the boundary wall and are marked as groups on the plan. Other individual footstones are also against the boundary wall, as indicated. Footstones are recorded individually, unless in their original positions and/or clearly associated with a grave. Two memorials, numbers 158 and 159, are set into the wall of the mausoleum extension at the south east of the church. Fragments of masonry, crosses, etc, bearing no inscription, have not been recorded.

The approximate extent of a tree canopy at the time of recording has been represented on the map as a disk. The bole of the tree should be taken as in the centre of the disk.

Regarding stone composition, 'limestone' has been used as a term to include marble and ragstone, where weathering has made the exact nature of the stone uncertain. Composition was tested by the dilute acid method.

The inscription record is as observed on the stones. No attempt has been made to guess at obscure or missing letters or numbers. Spelling is as engraved. Following accepted procedure, all names have been recorded in capitals and all other text in lower case, whether or not this is so on the stones. The forward slash, '/', indicates the end of one line, and the beginning of another, on the stone. The record is, of course, the 'best estimate' of the lettering at the time. No doubt further letters, and indeed errors, will reveal themselves under different conditions of lighting, etc. Anyone who makes such discoveries is encouraged to contact the Society at contact@lynsted-society.co.uk or by telephoning 01795 521168, so that the record can be amended.

This record of inscriptions has been supplemented by corresponding images in a larger, A4, reference booklet that is lodged in the church for visitors to consult. The complete written and pictorial record is also available on the Society website: lynsted-society.co.uk/churchyard.

Further information about the Lynsted with Kingsdown Society can be gained by visiting the website: lynsted-society.co.uk.

Acknowledgements

The Lynsted with Kingsdown Society is most grateful to the Lynsted-with-Kingsdown Parochial Church Council for kindly allowing access to the graveyard; to David Wood, Churchwarden, for discussions on his earlier researches on the inscriptions within and outside the church; to Margaret Burns, Kent Family History Society, for advice and an invaluable introductory workshop; and to Andrew Ashbee for helpful advice from time to time. The practical help of several members of the Teynham and Lynsted Historical Society is also gratefully acknowledged.

The Levelled Churchyard

‘O Passenger, pray list and catch
Our sighs and piteous groans,
Half stifled in this jumbled patch
Of wretched memorial stones!

‘We late-lamented, rested here,
Are mixed to human jam,
And each to each exclaims in fear,
“I know not what I am!”

‘The wicked people have annexed
The verses on the good;
A roaring drunkard sports the text
Teetotal Tommy should!

‘Where we are huddled none can trace,
And if our names remain,
They pave some path or porch or place
Where we have never lain!

‘Here’s not a modest maiden elf
But dreads the final Trumpet,
Lest half of her should rise herself,
And half some sturdy strumpet!

‘From restorations of Thy fane,
From smoothing of Thy sward,
From zealous Churchmen’s pick and plane
Deliver us O Lord! Amen.’

Thomas Hardy
